

DANIEL CHERRY BOBBY RADOLIFFE JONES CANNIVALE

A new play based on a true story? A true-ish story? Anyone who has ever told a lie has never told a good story.

Three award-winning stage, film and TV stars return to Broadway in the world premiere of THE LIFESPAN OF A FACT, dealing with the high-stakes world of publishing.

The demanding editor
The unorthodox author
The determined young fact checker about to stir up trouble

As described by Playbill, the production is “based on the stirring true story of John D’Agata’s essay “What Happens There,” about the Las Vegas suicide of teenager Levi Presley, and digs into a seven-year debate on the blurred lines of what passes for truth in literary nonfiction.”

Get ready for the ultimate showdown between truth and fiction--with undeniably delectable consequences.
